

NDA Releases New Issue Briefs on the Demolition Industry's Policy Agenda

Today, NDA released six one-page issue briefs that will allow members to communicate more effectively with lawmakers on the demolition industry's legislative and regulatory priorities.

These briefs are available on the NDA website for members to share with their elected officials and will allow for more efficient communication and targeted outreach on critical policy issues facing Congress and the Trump administration. The briefs succinctly outline NDA's positions on key federal policies that were included in the 2025 National Policy Agenda released last week.

Members are encouraged to share these issue briefs when meeting or corresponding with their elected officials on NDA's legislative and regulatory priorities. You can also use the briefs to raise awareness of the demolition industry's policy agenda with other important stakeholders in your community.

Trump Administration Pauses Tariffs on Canada and Mexico

On Monday, President Trump announced an agreement with Canada and Mexico to temporarily pause his administration's 25% tariff actions on each country for 30 days. Canada and Mexico also agreed to pause their retaliatory tariffs that were announced in response to the U.S. tariffs.

President Trump stated that he will now try to negotiate a broader agreement with both Canada and Mexico on border security, drug trafficking, and other items before the end of the 30-day pause. The additional 10% tariffs on products imported from China remains in effect.

NDA will continue to monitor U.S. trade actions and evaluate their impact on the demolition industry and construction supply chain. Last week, NDA sent a letter to President Trump urging his administration to keep the demolition industry in mind when implementing trade actions.
